"You make known to me the path of life; in your presence there is fullness of joy; at your right hand are pleasures forevermore." Psalm 16:11

Continued deputation...

I want to thank each of you who have faithfully supported us throughout the years with finances and prayers. Your support makes this ministry possible. I also want to ask those of you who are being prompted by God to join our support team to make this the year you begin sowing into this ministry.

Some days on campus you have conversations with individuals and you just know that God has used your words to change a life for His glory. This was one of those days. It was getting near the end of the day, and I had handed out many tracts but had not gotten into any conversations. Then this young girl and guy (I wish I remembered their names) came by, stopped and asked, "What is this?" I began to talk to them about why we were on campus. The girl quickly stated she was an atheist. Then I asked the guy with her, and he said he was a Christian. I asked a few questions about who Jesus claimed to be, and by his answers, I could tell he was only a cultural Christian. I then began asking them questions about creation and existence. The girl seemed as though she had thought through some of these questions before by her answers. I listened to her story for quite a long time. She had grown up in an abusive home, and her parents took her to church and then beat her after church. I told her that just because her parents claimed to be Christians, that did not mean they truly were; their actions did not represent Christ.

I then began to use a presuppositional argument about logic and truth. After I asked her to define truth, and where it came from, she was interested in hearing what I had to say. She said she likes to use logic in life. I took her through a discussion that shows the only place logic could have come from was the mind of God. She seemed to be speechless at this point and had nothing else to say except thank you for taking the time to talk. I gave her a tract to read as she left. I truly believe God used this conversation this day to start a change in this girl's life. Soli Deo Gloria!
